

“Sharing” Anthologies

“When you stand and share your story in an empowering way, your story will heal you and your story will heal somebody else.”

~ Iyanla Vanzant

Sharing anthologies are a way of pulling stories together to give voice to the challenges of life, as well as the transformation, hope and healing that is ours to receive. They are also a unique way of raising both money and awareness for specific causes. One Thousand Trees will partner with an individual or a specific charity (or charities) to produce an anthology. This includes soliciting, collecting and editing stories, and preparing a print-ready book. After production costs are covered, all proceeds from sales are retained by the group/organization.

- Production costs can be covered by either corporate sponsorship or advance book sales. If the corporate sponsorship option is selected, the sponsor(s) will be acknowledged in all promotional materials, their logo (if applicable) will be printed on the back cover of the anthology, and an "About ..." page can be included in the book itself, if desired.
- Anthology can include a section containing information about the charity/charities. There is also an option of including additional information about the charity's focus (ie statistics, useful tips, etc).
- One Thousand Trees will help promote the anthology, to encourage pre-publication orders, and will be available to assist the charity throughout each step of the process.
- Includes provision of ISBN, and registration with the National Library of Canada
